

The Seattle/Tacoma Consortium of Independent Schools, which includes Annie Wright, Archbishop Murphy, Bear Creek, Bellevue Children's Academy, Bishop Blanchet, Bush, Charles Wright, Eastside Catholic, Eastside Preparatory School, The Evergreen School, Forest Ridge School of the Sacred Heart, The French American School, Lakeside, Northwest, Overlake, The Perkins School, Seattle Academy, Seattle Country Day, Seattle Lutheran, Seattle Preparatory, Soundview, University Prep, Villa Academy, and Vista Academy at Open Window, uses the Independent School Entrance Exam (ISEE) for our admission test. The ISEE measures both ability to learn, through the verbal and quantitative reasoning sections, and achievement (what a student has learned), through the reading comprehension and mathematics achievement sections.

Register your child for the ISEE online at www.iseetest.org. For your convenience, attached is the list of schools that will administer the ISEE, including test dates, times and locations. Please note that exams begin in the morning unless otherwise stated. Test start times are listed on the online registration and will be included in your ISEE Verification Letter. The ISEE REGISTRATION FEE is $89. If the registration fee is burdensome to you, you may request a fee waiver from any school to which you are applying for admission.

If you prefer to have the hard copy version of the ISEE information available online, please request an "ISEE Online Student Guide" from any one of the schools requiring the test. This guide includes the ISEE registration form, a detailed test description and much of the information from the ISEE Web site (www.iseetest.org).

FREE PREPARATION MATERIALS called "What to Expect on the ISEE" are also available online at www.iseetest.org and include sample test questions.

TEST EARLY: We encourage students to take the ISEE on the earliest possible test date.

- ISEE studies reveal that test scores are just as high for students who test in early fall as for those who test in the winter.
- Students who test early feel less stress than those who wait.
- Students who become ill during winter flu season may not have time to reschedule. Your child may only take the ISEE once during the admission process.
- If your child requires testing accommodations, please contact ISEE for locations of test sites that offer accommodations.

INFORMATION REGARDING ISEE TEST RESULTS

We know that test results are often misunderstood and can be a source of anxiety. Test results are just one factor utilized in gaining a clear picture of each applicant and are, by no means, the sole criterion used. They serve to illuminate the school record and to provide us with a common denominator, given that the students who apply to our schools come from many different backgrounds. As educators, we are quite aware of what multiple-choice tests tell us - and don't tell us - about a student. We know that such qualities as empathy, vision, motivation, resilience, patience, sense of humor, creativity, the ability to work independently, and a whole array of other human qualities are not measured by any standardized test. A former president of Educational Testing Service, the group that devises and now administers a number of standardized tests, once said, "Tests can't assess the glint in a student's eye." We wholeheartedly agree. Rest assured all the schools in this group take many factors besides standardized test results into account in our admission decisions.

You may be perplexed by the fact that the test scores on the ISEE are lower than those on previous standardized tests your child has taken. In order to understand ability or achievement test scores, you need to be familiar with the group against whom the student is being compared, i.e. the norm group. The norm group in this case is the highly competitive nationwide population applying to independent schools. To illustrate the significance of the different norms, a student's reading score at the 87th percentile level on a National Norm might equate to the 50th percentile on the Independent School Norm. Although test results may be helpful to you, we urge you to use your own best judgement in deciding whether to share these results with your child. Our concern focuses on the educational appropriateness of students discussing their ISEE results with their peers.

Please call any of us with questions or concerns. Contact information for ISEE is www.iseetest.org or 800.446.0320.
